I do not impugn the integrity of any man-but the atmosphere in which a man has lived should be carefully analyzed and his leaning closely scrutinized before he is placed in the position of arbiter between the people on one hand and the great utilty corporations on the other. His training and work in life may have been such as to largely disqualify him for such a position; cause him, perhaps un of the English channel, have devised intentionally, to lean to one side or the other of the question submitted to him: to more readily pronounce a judgment without full investigation in the premises, depending upon his past experience to rightly direct his judgment intsead of upon the submitted record.

Evanston, Wyo. — Wyoming flock masters, who for years have resorted to rifles traps and poison in futile efforts to pro-tect their sheep from predatory animals, are agreed that the brightly lighted transcontinental air mail route has succeeded where they have where they have failed.

Sheepmen have made the discovery that the coyotes and wolves have abandoned the ranges entirely for less civilized haunts as a result of the power-ful beacon lights.

Yet to offset this benefit a new problem arises. The slum-ber of the sheep on the ranges is being disturbed by the bright lights and the flocks refuse to bed down, but continue feeding during the night.

Milwaukee Divorce Case Reveals Strange Tangle.

Milwaukee. - Dead for 15 years, the husband of Mrs. Mary Czachorow-ski was named as corespondent in a divorce action brought by her second spouse, revealing one of the strangest marital triangles ever heard of here

Before Judge Briedenback, in Circuit court, Joseph Czachorowski testified that his wife, Mary, a devotee of spiritualism, neglected her home to attend seances where she hugged and kissed the materialized spirit of her first husband, who died in 1911. The wife on the stand, said she was a believer in spiritualism and related a story of seances where she be-lieved she had seen and talked with her first husband.

Judge Briedenback in granting her a divorce on her counter-claim of cruelty upheld the right of a mar-rled woman to make love to the spirit of a deceased husband. Such conduct, he indicated, cannot be classed as infidelity.

The wife asserted that her husband exaggerated affairs in his testimony, and said the real reason for their failure to live together amicably was his irritable temper and his habit of striking and beating her.

There is a great amount of useful education in the world. Acquire 1 and you may live more comfortably, usefully, easily, more successfully. Why not, therefore, aim to acquire this useful education from month to month year to year, day to day, as you find time for education? Why neglect it when you have spare time? Why en-gage in foolish, annoying arguments or missions?

I know a woman who must be in the neighborhood of sixty. She never could sing and could not be taught, but has "kept up her music" until the present and shows no signs of quitting. . That's the trouble with art; it has so many enthusiastic lady followers who have no real appreciation of art, no judgment, no ability. And they talk as though they were old Missus Art herself. . If a man of similar ability and they are appreciations of similar ability and they were some constant of similar ability and the same of same of similar ability and the same of sa Missus Art herself. An Indiana doctor writes me he does not believe Henry Ford can read and think as the average man does. Henry Ford is the intimate friend of Thomas A. Edison. These two men take vacations together, sleep in the same tent, sit around the same camp fire and exchange views.

You may depend upon it, Mr. Edison would not spend his idle time with a man who cannot read and think.

Whatever is earned in a community should be reinvested in it. . . . Say a certain farming community produces corn, wheat, live stock, hay, etc. The profits from the sale of these products should be turned back into that community in better schools, better farm munity in better schools, better farm machinery, better fertilizers, better homes for the workers, better bins for the grain, better housing for the farm animals, . . If the citizens of a county in Iowa make money from the soil and strip it by using surplus earn ings in buying town lots in California at great prices, they are guilty of a mistake surprising in the people of lowa, who are generally intelligent. A ommunity is as much entitled to a fair deal as a man.

The man who makes a failure of life can explain it perfectly, but the people regard him as they do a drunkard or gambler. . . . People abuse the successful man, but they do not n it. As evidence that they do note the greedy manner in which they "run after" him. The abuse a man gets for being successful is easie to bear than abuse for being a failure.

As soon as he struck the old bad road again, he was perfectly at home, and his old self. . . . I am a little that way. When conditions are perfect I am a little frightened, having been accustomed all my life to bad conditions. When I am with perfectly behaved people I am a little nervous; I am used to rough ways,

A news item lately caused me to blush. It related that in some of the excavations now going on, tablets were found twenty-eight hundred years old-er than the Christian era. The writing on the tablets being deciphered by learned men, it was discovered to be a protest against the extravagance and folly of the time in which the writer lived. The young people were not controllable; the timber supply was being wasted so wantonly that the writer predicted that within a few years there would be no more tre the poor were growing poorer, and the rich, richer; the politicians were ruining the country; the people were extravagant, and saving nothing; the law was everywhere disregarded, and general ricting and destruction inevitable. . . It was precisely the line of talk I have been indulging in,

JEWS OF RUSSIA IN PITIABLE CONDITION

Ruined and Starving, Reports Investigator.

New York .- The wracking experi ence of a three-months "nightmare" journey through a gray, huddled Twen-tleth-century inferno of misery, want and helplessness was recounted by Miss Irma May of New York city, who returned on the steamship Paris di-rect from a tour of the "hunger re-gion" of Poland, Galicia and Bessarabla, where hundreds of thousands of Jewish families, after a ten-years' struggle against the impoverishment of the war, are now crushed in a final tragedy of industrial ruin, destitution and starvation as a result of the lates conomic collapse in eastern Europe.

Miss May, who was abroad on a visit when the first reports of the new Jewish disaster in Europe reached this country, was commissioned by cable by David A. Brown, national chairman of the United Jewish campaign for a $15,000,000 overseas chest to complete the reconstruction tasks undertaken by the American Jewish joint distribution committee in Pussia and the eastern European countries, to obtain first-hand information of actual conditions and the extent of the breakdown of trade and industry affecting the Jews of these countries.

Inquiry Begun in January.

She started on her mission early in January and in the last three months has Journeyed from city to city, from village to village in all the large Jewish sections of Poland, Galicia and Besserble.

Her reports by radio and letter to Mr. Brown, based on authenticated statistical information, make up a day-by-day chronicle of human ruin and despair, crowded with intimate detail of the suffering of workers broken by months and years of unem-ployment, of merchants stripped of their last resources, of proud and poor alike leveled to bread-lines and soup-kitchens, of women and children starving and freezing and waiting in piteous resignation for death.

More than a million Jews of Poland one-third the entire Jewish population of the country—are at present ab solutely without any means of sup-port, and their only hope of being saved from extinction, Miss May de-clares, rests on the early arrival of relief funds from America.

The Jewish cities of Bessarabia Miss May found, present a repetition of the Polish picture of impoverishment, stagnation and belpless misery. Due to a two years' crop failure, the historic Jewish agricultural con nities of this region are shattered by want, famine and disease.

Child mortality in Bessarabla has reached 100 per cent as a result of severe malnutrition and lack of medical aid, and favus and hunger-typhus are spreading ominously. The food allowance of Jewish families in this section of Bessarabia-all available food supplies are rationed by local "hunger committees"—is a few ounces of corn meal and a fraction of a pound of potatoes a day.

Frenzied Struggle for Bread,

Miss May's final experiences in Po land represent a peak of the appall-ing panorama of physical and moral breakdown in which a piteous, frenzied struggle for bread, hopeless submission to squalor and disease, and a panic of self-destruction as an escape from unbearable suffering and degradation bespeak the utter collapse of the ancient communal structure of Jewish life in Poland, and threaten the ex-tinction of millions of lives of men, women and children.

In Brest-Litovsk Miss May found the poorest of the poor, mostly war wid-ows, still living in the ruins of the synagogues in which they took shelter when they returned as refugees and exiles of siege and evacuation after the razing of the city in the last vithdrawal of the Russian armies from he fortress.

Utterly depleted by the destruction of the military occupations and coun-ter-occupations, scarcity of work and food and the struggle against brokendown, rudimentary living conditions, the local community is incapable of relieving the plight of these people.

War orphans and children born in the years of famine and internal tur-moil are growing up as waifs, with weakened constitutions and no outook for a normal adjustment to or

Denver .- The "Cousin Jacks," the prospectors after gold are passing. Hardly a week now goes by but word comes down that another has been omes down that another has count dead in a rotting cabin in the "ghost cities" that dot the high country of Colorado and the mining west.

The towns, many of them, are dying, too. Once well-worn streets are grass grown, and pack rats haunt the buildings.

Central City is perhaps the most striking example of the change. Thir-ty years ago it boasted a population of 12,000. Today there are approximately 500 persons there. President Grant and his daughte visited Central City and the residents paved the sidewalk from the street to the old Teller house with gold. Black Hawk, near Central City is in the same plight. Some old tunnels have been opened, a few people work them, but vacant houses stand row on

Many of the towns are virtually without inhabitants except for one or two old prospectors who still dream that the boom days will return. Nevadaville has two men left; American City about the same number. A person can wander through Owl, Tincup, Mound City and Aultman for days at a time without seeing a face.

Nevadaville had the first Masonic odge charter in Colorado and the third in Kansas territory, which then embraced this state. The lodge still exists and men travel by burro, in automobiles or afoot long distances to attend regular meetings.

BURNING LAKE AIDS FIELD OF BOTANY

Interesting Specimens Se cured by Explorer.

Washington.—A lake which burns every year provided one of the strange collecting grounds in Costa Rica from which Dr. Paul C. Standley, botanist of the National Herbarium, under the direction of the mithsonian institution, has just brought back a collection of 11,738 Smithso

The paradoxical burning lake is Arenal in Guanacaste province, in the northwest corner of Costa Rica. Al-though sixteen miles by four miles in area, and thirty feet deep in spots, Lake Arenal is so thickly grown over with a tall grass that it seems to be a level prairie. The grass dries be-low the tips every year, whereupon the Costa Ricans set fire to it, thereby furnishing what is probably the world's sole example of a burning lake.

The rich collection brought back by Doctor Standley as the result of four months' intensive work includes many new species and one new genus. This last is a tree closely reated to the walnut and the hickory. Although the natives do not eat the nuts, they do use the wood. Since it is a fairly common tree in Costa Rica, the fact that it has not been described before is surprising.

Two New Potato Trees.

Doctor Standley also found two new kinds of the potato tree—Palo de Papa. This is an important timber tree, but it also produces a fruit, the kernel of which is very good to eat, tasting like coconut. The natives roast it like chestnuts and also grind it to make a meal. Doctor Standley has already described two kinds of this same genus from Mexico. the kernel is used to furnish a black dye, and the Mexican name for the tree is Calatola, an Aztec word mean-ing "crow water," referring no doubt to its use as a dve

Cos-ta Rica produces more varieties of or-chids than any other section of this hemisphere, 1,000 different kinds having been described from that country

Reaches Virgin Field.

Doctor Standley made collections
rom two regions which have never beore been explored by botanists. first of these was Lota, in Costa Rica, a mountainous region which includes a tableland at an elevation of 10,000 feet, the only one of its kind in Central America. It is a cold and wind-swept area character-ized by grassland and low bushes. An mal life-birds, beasts and insectsis practically nonexistent there. The other unexplored region was Guana-caste province, a land of low elevation, extensively grazed by cattle.

Doctor Standley's expedition formed a part of the plan of the Smithsonian nstitution to prepare a descriptive ac-count of the plants of all of Central America, which will be of great importance to commerce as well as to science. Before the work can get properly under way extensive collec-tions must be made in Honduras and Nicaragua, two regions which have scarcely been touched by botanists. Funds are needed for these explora-

As a result of the two expeditions already made to Costa Rica, Doctor Standley is preparing a memoir on the plonts of that country alone, which will be published by the Costa Rican government.

New Fluid Reveals Veins Under X-Ray

Kansas City, Mo.-By a process of lodizing oil, Dr. J. E. Forester of Aix-les-Bains, France, says that he has perfected a fluid that can be injected into the veins of the body which renders them immune X-ray and thus makes it possi-ble to examine them in detail. Hitherto bismuth has been extensively used for the pur-pose. A solution of bismuth could be placed in the stomach or other organ to be examined and the bismuth solution would he opaque in the photograph or on the inside of that organ, and was, therefore, only partially of value in examination

The fluid which Doctor For ester has perfected can be in-jected in certain tissues and those tissues rendered opaque to the X-rays. Thus it would be possible to inject into the bronchial tube certain doses of the material and the bronchial tubes themselves, and not the hollows therein, would be re-vealed.

A GOOD TIP

Now is the time to buy purebred why not use the $200 and then begin all over again, Aunty?" queried Hidda.

"Because you ought to have some money on hand. You don't want to wipe out your whole savings, even for ored in many instances have declined practically to the level of those paid for slaughter animals. There is need for slaughter animals. There is need for purebred livestock on farms and it does not seem right to slaughter animals that could be used to improve the quality of farm herds and flocks.

An exceptionally high producing cow is worth many times the price of a slaughter animal. Not only does such an individual produce more actual milk and butterfat, but the superior production characteristics of such individuals may be passed on through several succeeding generations.

individuals may be passed on through several succeeding generations.

The fact should not be overlooked that purebred livestock is a real necessity. Without such stock, milk and butterfat records and weights of fleeces will decline and uniformity of type and quality will be sacrificed. No improvement can be made without improvement can be made without them. Now is the time to sel, scrub stock and buy purebreds while the prices are low.—Banker-Farmer.

Public Admires Artists

Who Show Temperamen Peculiar things endear a musician to the public. There is, for example, Pachmann, who once began scolding some people who were talking during one of his concerts. The audience, including the rude ones, gave every evidence of enjoying this outburst of temperament. The local scribes made a front-page story of his land werbal displeasure, and papers all over the world commented on the in ident. From that time on the pianist has talked to his audience when he plays.

"Pigs! pigs!" he shouted. "You have no understanding of music! I will not play for you!"

Catching sight just then of Mr. I will play for you, but not for these

The manager had to go down front and climb onto the stage, where he sat beside and calmed the irate musician during the rest of the program.

Juvenile Collections

Worth While Keeping Most every real boy has a mania for collecting things-often things at which his more fastidious elders shudder and turn away. But Donald Paul, eleven, and Murray Lobuschesky, ten, have collections which are just a bit out of the ordinary, and so they have been placed on exhibition in the young people's room of Syracuse public library for all other real boys to look upon

Donald has some marbles found welded together after the Chicago fire; specimens of isinglass, iron ore, crystal, Indian arrows of various kinds, interestingly shaped stones and shells, specimens of petrified wood and moss, Canadian. English, Italian and Chinese coins and stamps from various editions of the United States and other countries In Murray's collection are inhorse's tooth, a crab's claw, yellow bird's feather, a peculiar stone from the Virginia mountains, a nut from the Philippines, and another nut "that a squirrel had," as its naively worded placard announces. -- Syracuse Post-Standard.

War Debt Settlement

Here is another pretty saue view on the war debt settlement as uttered by Senator William M. Butler of Massachusetts who is also chairman of the republican national committee:

The war debt settlements now before the senate, are just and equitable, as proposed, and are based upon the capacity of each country to pay. If they are not approved what shall we do? Abandon them, or secure them by force?

That is the question. We do not want the horrors of war. These debts have great bearing, not only upon us but upon generations to follow. We can be tolerant and the follo upon us but upon generations to follow. We can be tolerant and helpful to those countries less fortunate than ours."

Once the property of an unhappy queen of France, the consort of Louis XV, a quaint old seal for the marking of love letters is now owned by Miss Clara B. Fishpaugh of Cookeysville, Md. A mother-ofpearl handle holds a framework of gilded metal. Within the frame is a wheel which turns freely, and on the wheel are placed six different semiprecious stones, with the seals cut in them. The lady using the seal might mark her letter with the figure of a dove bearing a note in its beak and the words, "Answer quick-ly." This is cut in the amethyst facet. ### Liberty

PROCLAIM liberty throughout all the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof —this was the legend inscribed on what was later to be known as the Liberty Bell, when it was recast in Philadelphia in 1753.

Twenty-three years later this prophetic admonition was carried out when the now historic bell heralded the adoption of the Declaration of Independence.

A century after this assertion of American liberty, Alexander Graham Bell gave to America and to the world, in the telephone, an instrumentality of a new form of freedom. Limitations which had confined the scope of the spoken word were swept away. Doors of isolation were thrown open. In his contacts with his fellows, man had achieved a new independence.

For fifty years this emancipation of speech has undergone an unceasing evolution into a larger and ever larger liberty. Year by year man's voice has reached out over greater and greater distances until today it speeds from coast to coast, borne on the wires of a nation-wide telephone system.
